

My sense is that they do not want to come forward with proposals because they are not sincere, to be quite honest. I do not believe they are sincere. If they were sincere they would come forward with these proposals. But the fact that they have not raises serious doubts as to their sincerity in their efforts. I hope I am wrong but, as of right now, I think the facts show I am right. I think the American people should start asking themselves what type of administration, what philosophy of Government allows the executive branch to agree to a 7-year timeframe for reaching a balanced budget but refuses to come forward and define how they are going to get to that balanced budget? What is the philosophy of an administration that does that?

I do not believe it is a philosophy that is sincerely committed to a balanced budget. I believe it is a philosophy that is more involved in the politics of the issue than the substance of the issue. That is the problem. We cannot afford, as a nation, any longer to be involved in the politics. We need to be involved with the substance of the balanced budget. In order to get involved in the substance, we need to have this administration come forward and state specifically how it intends to get to a balanced budget in 7 years. We have done it. The reason we have done it is because we understand that, if this is not accomplished, and not accomplished at this time, at this moment in history where the opportunity is so ripe, that we may not have a chance at any later date to do it again. And, if we do not do it now, if we do not put in place now the decisions that are necessary to change the spending patterns of this Government in the outyears so we reduce its rate of growth—we are not talking about cutting the Federal Government, we are talking about reducing its rate of growth. In fact, in the Medicare area we are talking about adding $349 billion of new spending to Medicare and allowing it to grow at a rate that actually exceeds what the President projected in one of his budgets that he sent up.

But, if we do not make the changes necessary to reduce the rate of growth in the Federal Government and make those changes now by changing the programs which drive spending, specifically the entitlement programs, then we are going to end up, as a nation, passing on to our children a country that is bankrupt. That is an extremely cynical act to have occur at the time when all the parties have formally stated that they are opposed to having that occur. That is the irony of this. All the parties have now formally stated they are willing to reach a balanced budget. Yet one of the parties has been unwilling to state how it is going to get there. Thus, you have to question their sincerity.

The fact is, if we do not do this now, if we do not make these changes now which accomplish a balanced budget—and we do not have to follow the plan laid out by the Republicans. We would be happy to see a plan from the other side of the aisle, specifically from the administration, or a joint plan worked out. But we need to have the facts from the administration first and the proposals from the administration first. If we do not follow such a plan and put such a plan in place now, we are not going to be able to accomplish it.

Mr. President, I ask for an additional minute.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GREGG. We are not going to be able to accomplish what is that overriding, absolutely essential goal which is that we get this budget in balance so our children have a nation which is solvent.

So, as we move down this road, recognizing there is a tremendously large amount going on in this world today which distracts the attention of Americans, recognizing our first concern and interest must be for our soldiers who are going into Bosnia, I do hope we will not lose focus on the fact that the future of our children is being decided today on the issue of whether we get to a balanced budget. We are not going to be able to get from here to there unless this administration starts putting forward some honest proposals.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

COOPERATION

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, we have been treated in the Senate with a discussion by Senator THOMAS, Senator INHOFE, Senator COVERDELL, Senator ABRAHAM, Senator HUTCHISON, Senator GREGG, and I assume there will be more, who come to the Senate, among other things to question the sincerity of those on the Democratic side, and especially the President, about whether or not we are interested in a balanced budget. In fact, one of the speakers this morning said that he felt that the President was hiding in Europe, I believe that was the term he used, "hiding out" in Europe.

It is not the kind of thoughtful discussion that would advance a spirit of cooperation, to do the right thing for this country, to see a parade of people coming to the floor of the Senate, questioning the sincerity of people on the other side. It is certainly not thoughtful. But, rather, it is thoughtless for anyone to come here and suggest that what the President is doing at this point in Europe—dealing with the issue of peacekeepers in Ireland, and so on—is that the President is hiding out. I did not intend to come to the floor to speak on this issue today.

THE BUDGET NEGOTIATIONS

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I have been asked to be one of the negotiators in the budget negotiations. So I and Senator EXON, representing the Democratic side in the budget negotiations, are spending a lot of time and will spend a great deal of time on this issue. I do not need, nor do I think the President nor anyone else needs, to have their sincerity questioned about whether or not they want a balanced budget. I believe it is in this country's interest to have a balanced budget. I believe that is a goal that represents a legitimate and important goal for this country. It is one goal. There are others.

Do we care and should we do something about making sure we have the best schools in the world? Yes. That is another goal. Do we care that we have clean air and clean water and a decent environment in the country? Yes. That is a third goal. Do we care whether low-income senior citizens have access to health care? Do we care whether children have access to good nutrition? Do we care whether poor children have access to health care? Those are other goals. It is not a case where there is only one goal in this country. We have a number of goals we must meet.

It is true the Republicans put together a plan. It is also true that plan is dead, gone. The President will veto it. There are 34 people who will sustain the veto. And that plan does not exist at that point. Then what is true is Democrats and Republicans sit down at the table and decide together, how do we balance the budget in 7 years? That is going to take a substantial amount of effort and good will. And it is not just how do you balance the budget in 7 years, but it is how do you do that in a responsible way for the long-term interests of this country?

Those who paraded in here this morning had a plan that would balance the budget in 7 years by, among other things, providing—let me give you a couple of little examples—that we repeal most of the alternative minimum tax for corporations so 2,000 corporations will get $7 million each in tax breaks because of the reduction in the alternative minimum tax. I do not know whether everyone who voted for that knew that was in there. But those who voted for it and believe that should happen do no service to this country. That is not good public policy.

I wonder whether those who voted for this plan they are so proud of understand that what they did was increase the tax incentive for people to close down their plants in America and move their jobs overseas. That is in the plan. It says, by the way, if you do that, we will give you a bigger tax benefit. Just move the American jobs you have overseas and we will give you a benefit. I do not know whether anybody is proud of that or whether they want to come here and boast that was in their plan.

There are a series of very large policy areas that we must address—Medicare, Medicaid, education, environment, and others. On the issue of Medicare, the majority party plan, which is now going to be dead when the President vetoes it, calls for $270 billion in budget
